Re: Dkt. No. 1

20 Pending before the Court are two motions to withdraw the automatic reference to the 21 United States Bankruptcy Court. See Case No. 19-cv-00599, Dkt. No. 1-2; Case No. 19-cv-00781, 22 Dkt. No. 1-1. In addition to the parties' papers, Bankruptcy Judge Dennis Montali—from whose 23 court these withdrawals of reference stem—submitted a recommendation regarding the motions, 24 as permitted under Bankruptcy Local Rule 5011-2(b). Dkt. No. 25.<sup>1</sup> After carefully considering 25 the parties' arguments and Judge Montali's recommendation, the Court DENIES the motions.

28 <sup>1</sup> Docket references are to Case Number 19-cv-00599 unless otherwise indicated.

1           I. BACKGROUND

2           On January 29, 2019, PG&E Corporation and Pacific Gas and Electric Company
3 (collectively, “Debtors”) filed voluntary petitions for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy
4 Code. Case Nos. 19-30088-DM, 19-30089-DM. The same day, Debtors filed an adversary
5 proceeding against the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (“FERC”), seeking a declaratory
6 judgment to enforce the automatic stay of 11 U.S.C. § 362 and preliminary and permanent 7 injunctive relief. The Debtors did so because immediately before they filed for bankruptcy, FERC
8 issued two decisions that the Debtors now believe conflict with their right to move to assume or 9 reject executory contracts in the bankruptcy cases. Those FERC orders concluded that FERC has 10 “concurrent jurisdiction to review and address the disposition of wholesale power contracts sought 11 to be rejected through bankruptcy.” See, e.g., NextEra Order at 14, 166 FERC ¶ 61,049 (2019).

12           II. LEGAL STANDARD

13           District courts have “original but not exclusive jurisdiction” over all bankruptcy 14 proceedings. See 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b). Such proceedings fall into one of two categories: “core 15 proceedings, in which the bankruptcy court may enter appropriate orders and judgment,” and 16 “non-core proceedings, which the bankruptcy court may hear but for which it may only submit 17 proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law to the district court for de novo review.” Sec.
18 Farms v. Int’l Bhd. of Teamsters, Chauffers, Warehousemen & Helpers, 124 F.3d 999, 1008 (9th 19 Cir. 1997) (quoting 28 U.S.C. § 157) (internal quotation marks omitted).

20           In the Northern District of California, all bankruptcy cases are automatically referred to the 21 bankruptcy court. B.L.R. 5011-1(a) (referring all bankruptcy cases in the Northern District of 22 California to its bankruptcy court); see also 28 U.S.C. § 157(a) (“Each district court may provide 23 that any or all cases under title 11 and any or all proceedings arising under title 11 or arising in or 24 related to a case under title 11 shall be referred to the bankruptcy judges for the district.”). On a 25 timely motion, however, any party may seek to withdraw that reference, which is governed by 28
26 U.S.C. § 157(d). Under Section 157(d):

27                     The district court may withdraw, in whole or in part, any case or 28                     proceeding referred under this section, on its own motion or on timely motion of any party, for cause shown. The district court shall, on

1           timely motion of a party, so withdraw a proceeding if the court 2           determines that resolution of the proceeding requires consideration of 3           both title 11 and other laws of the United States regulating 4           organizations or activities affecting interstate commerce.

5           The statute creates two bases for withdrawal: mandatory and permissive. Under either, “[t]he 6           party seeking withdrawal of the reference bears the burden of showing that the reference should be 7           withdrawn.” In re Heller Ehrman LLP, 464 B.R. 348, 351–32 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (citing In re
8           Larry’s Apartment, LLC, 210 B.R. 469, 472 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1997)).

9           Withdrawal is mandatory where “resolution of the proceeding requires consideration of 10           both title 11 and other laws of the United States regulating organizations or activities affecting 11           interstate commerce.” 28 U.S.C. § 157(d). “Overwhelmingly courts and commentators agree that 12           the mandatory withdrawal provision cannot be given its broadest literal reading, for sending every 13           proceeding that required passing ‘consideration’ of non-bankruptcy law back to the district court
14           would ‘eviscerate much of the work of the bankruptcy courts.’” In re Vicars Ins. Agency, Inc., 96 15           F.3d 949, 952 (7th Cir. 1996) (quoting In re Adelphi Inst., Inc., 112 B.R. 534, 536 (S.D.N.Y.
16           1990). Courts in the Ninth Circuit have concluded that withdrawal is mandatory under Section 17           157(d) “when [non-title 11] issues require the interpretation, as opposed to mere application, of the 18           non-title 11 statute, or when the court must undertake analysis of significant open and unresolved
19           issues regarding the non-title 11 law.” See In re Tamalpais Bancorp, 451 B.R. 6, 8–9 (N.D. Cal.
20           2011). Under this approach, the withdrawing party “must do more than merely suggest that novel 21           issues of law could possibly arise in a bankruptcy proceeding.” Id.

22           Withdrawal is permissive “for cause shown.” 28 U.S.C. § 157(d). In considering whether 23           a party has shown cause to withdraw the reference, “[i]t is within a district court's discretion to 24           grant or deny a motion for permissive withdrawal of reference; that decision will not be disturbed
25           unless the court abuses its discretion.” In re EPD Inv. Co. LLC, No. cv 13-05536 SJO, 2013 WL 26           5352953, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 24, 2013) (citing In re Cinematronics, Inc., 916 F.2d 1444, 1451 27           (9th Cir. 1990)).

28           III. DISCUSSION

          The Court first finds that mandatory withdrawal is not required. The withdrawing parties contend that withdrawal is mandated because “resolution of the Adversary Proceeding will require

1 substantial and material consideration . . . of non-bankruptcy federal law.” See, e.g., Dkt. No. 1-2
2 at 15. Principally, they argue that the adversary proceeding must resolve:

3 (1) whether the exclusive review process set forth in the FPA bars the 4 Debtors from collaterally attacking the FERC Order in the bankruptcy 5 court; (2) whether the bankruptcy court can unilaterally order the 6 rejection of the NextEra PPAs (or other wholesale power contracts
7 subject to FERC’s authority) notwithstanding FERC’s exclusive 8 jurisdiction over the rates, terms, and conditions for the sale of 9 electricity; and (3) whether and to what extent the standard for 10 rejection should include the consideration of the “public interest,” as 11 well as which forum should consider the public interest question.

12 Id. But as Judge Montali notes in his recommendation, the bankruptcy court need not look beyond 13 the Bankruptcy Code to address these questions: “It is my view all that needs to be done is 14 consider the plain language of Section 365 of the Bankruptcy Code. There you will find the 15 answer to the question of whether FERC can decree that 11 U.S.C. § 365 must be construed to 16 permit FERC to second guess the bankruptcy court and impose its own decision on that court.”
17 Dkt. No. 25 at 6–7. The Court agrees that resolving these questions will not necessarily involve 18 the substantial and material consideration of non-title 11 law so as to mandate withdrawal. See In 19 re Tamalpais Bancorp, 451 B.R. at 8–9.

20 The Court further finds that permissive withdrawal is not warranted. As Judge Montali’s 21 recommendation notes, among other things, “the bankruptcy court has already received Debtors’ 22 motion for a Preliminary Injunction; FERC’s opposition to that motion; and NextEra and the other 23 interveners’ joint opposition.” Dkt. No. 25 at 3–4. In short order, the bankruptcy court “will have 24 heard extensive argument and engaged in significant study and preparation for making a ruling,” 25 and “[b]y permitting [the bankruptcy court] to do so, [the district court] will avoid the duplication 26 of effort that will be necessary for [it] to prepare for and decide the same issue.” Id. at 4. With 27 these considerations in mind, the Court finds that the most “efficient use of judicial resources” is 28 to deny the withdrawal of reference and permit the bankruptcy court to rule in the adversary proceeding. See Sec. Farms, 124 F.3d at 1008. And given that the bankruptcy court intends to rule on the adversary proceeding in short order, denying the withdrawal requests will not result in undue “delay and costs.” See id.

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 For the foregoing reasons, the Court DENIES the pending motions for withdrawal of the 3 reference. And in light of this order, the Court DENIES AS MOOT FERC's motion to expedite 4 consideration of its motion to withdraw the reference. See Case No. 19-cv-00781, Dkt. No. 5.
5 The Clerk is directed to terminate the cases.
